Jury Report

The jury members have different opinions regarding whether the architectural expression of this project should make reference to the surrounding boatyards. However, we all agree that the architect has executed the design with a very effective and simple solution that fulfils the client's expectation and budget. It's well organized, clean and exists as a clam and peaceful space in a chaotic factory environment. However, some construction details are not very refined, and the white and extremely minimal building style might not be suitable to the cloudy weather of the region.
